

Usborne
Phonics Readers
Toad makes a road

Usborne Phonics Readers have been created in consultation with a language expert, taking into account the latest research on the most effective ways of teaching reading. Children who have just learned to read can enjoy the lively stories with very little guidance from an adult, gaining the experience and enthusiasm they need to become fully confident readers.

Stephen Cartwright's delightful illustrations complement the text and are designed to stimulate further interest. Fold-out pages add to the enjoyment.

£4.99

ISBN 0 7460 7728 9

Made with paper from a sustainable forest

JFMAMJJAS ND'06

www.usborne.com

ISBN 978074607728-3

9 780746 077283 >

Usborne
Phonics Readers
Toad makes a road

Supports synthetic phonics
learning

Phil Roxbee Cox & Stephen Cartwright

What is synthetic phonics?

Phonics-based reading involves learning to recognize the distinct sounds, or phonemes, that go together to make up words. There are just over 40 phonemes in the English language. Some phonemes correspond to a single letter, like the h-o-p sounds in the word "hop", and others to combinations of letters, such as the sh-ee-p sounds in the word "sheep".

Synthetic phonics is the process of reading by sounding the individual phonemes in a word, and then synthesizing – running them together – or blending them to read the whole word. Children who learn to read using synthetic phonics start by learning the individual phonemes, then soon learn to sound and blend in order to read whole words. This gives them the confidence to read unfamiliar words and tackle new texts, an important step towards independent reading.

Words can be divided into two basic groups: regular phonic words, such as "sheep", which can be read by sounding and blending, and words which are wholly or partly irregular. Most words in English are regular, but some very common words, such as "the" and "was", are irregular and have to be learned. When your child meets an unfamiliar word, encourage him or her to read it regularly; children may recognize the irregularity and correct themselves, or you can guide them if necessary.

Read this story with your child, encouraging him or her to sound out the words as you go. Soon, most children will start to sound out the words for themselves. This is an excellent way of helping to develop a fundamental reading skill.

Dr. Marlynn Grant

Usborne Phonics Readers Toad makes a road

Phil Roxbee Cox

Illustrated by Stephen Cartwright

Edited by Jenny Tyler

Language consultant: Marlynn Grant
BSc, CertEd, MEdPsych, PhD, AFBPs, CPsychol

There is a little yellow duck to find on every page.

First published in 2006 by Usborne Publishing Ltd., Usborne House, 85-85 Saffron Hill, London EC1N 8RT, England; www.usborne.com
Copyright © 2006, 2000 Usborne Publishing Ltd.

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise without the prior permission of the publisher. The name Usborne and the devices   are Trade Marks of Usborne Publishing Ltd.
Printed in China. UE. First published in America in 2006.

Toad hops happily.
She has a new house on the hill.

"My new house is best," she boasts.

Toad waits and waits for the truck to bring her things.

Time ticks on...

Time ticks on...

She's out of luck.
Where is that truck?

Is the truck stuck?

Toad hops down
the hill.

She's in luck.
There's the truck.

"I can't get up the hill. The load will spill."

There's no track for the truck.

So, Toad brings her things up the hill.

Toad is tired.
With one last hop
she flops into bed...

Next day, Toad eats toast.
"Today is my party!"

But only Billy the goat gets up the hill.

"It's far too steep,
except for me
or a sheep."

"What you need is a road, Toad."

"If I need a road, then I'll make a road!"
says Toad.

"But toads can't make roads,"
says Billy. "That's silly."

"Wait and see!"
says Toad.

Toad clears a track.

She lays black,
sticky tar.

Then she rolls it flat.

Toad's road is ready.

TOAD'S ROAD
TO TOAD'S HOUSE.
ALL WELCOME.

Now Toad's in luck.
Here comes the truck!

